Do solar panels need to be cleaned?

When all is said and done, cleaning solar panels is an uncomplicated procedure that you can take care of just as well as a professional. If you have a small installation, it pays off to clean it on your own because the cost of professional cleaning would exceed the estimated energy gain associated with clean solar panels.

How to clean a solar panel?

Many cleaning products are too abrasive for solar panels or may leave a residue that blocks sunlight, so you should choose these carefully. Try mixing a mild detergent in water, slowly adding more cleaner if you need more cleaning power. The last step in solar panel cleaning is to dry the glass and review your work.

When should I clean my solar panels?

Pro Tip: Always clean your solar panels in the morning or evening. During the middle part of the day the panels can get very hot making cleaning dangerous for both you and the panels. Refer to your manual for instructions prior to shutting down the system and beginning to clean.

What is solar panel cleaning?

First and foremost, let us introduce the two different terms discussed in this article: Solar panel cleaning: this entails washing the panels like windows. The cleaning may be combined with preventive maintenance of the solar collectors.

Should you hire a solar panel cleaning company?

There are a myriad of companies which offer cleaning services for each of these solar panels. Enlisting the aid of a solar panel cleaning company is a reasonable choice for very large installations known as solar farms or solar parks. Why is that?

Should you filter water before cleaning a solar panel?

These could leave behind smears as the water dries, reducing your panels' efficiency, so you may want to filter your water before cleaning with it. If you're working on a hot day, avoid using cold water, too, as the dramatic temperature shift could cause the glass to crack. Instead, use warm water and try to clean on a relatively cool day.
