

Are solar panels a scam?

That is, of course, also a scam. To protect yourself from clean energy scams: Know that "free" or "no cost" solar panel offers are scams. The federal government does not install solar systems in homes for free. If you're considering whether solar energy is right for you, check out the Department of Energy's guide for homeowners and learn more.

How does a solar installation scam work?

How the scam works: People posing as solar installers or utility employees call or come to your home and offer free solar panels through made-up government programs or incentives. Sometimes they also claim their company will cover the cost of installation by providing huge rebates.

Are solar leases and PPAs a scam?

No, not all leases and PPAs are scams. However, they seem to be a breeding ground for deceptive and predatory practices, including the old "government is paying people to go solar" scam. Related reading: Solar Leases vs. Solar Loans vs. Solar PPAs

How do I avoid solar panel scams?

Getting multiple quotes and thoroughly vetting installers is the best way to avoid solar panel scams. You can also use solar.com to compare quotes from our network of thoroughly vetted installers.

Are solar panels free?

There's no such thing as free solar panels. There are no federal government giveaways for solar panel installations, and no company is required to offer them for free. You may be eligible for a solar tax credit of up to 30% of the cost of installing a system, but that doesn't make it free.

Are home solar panels a good idea?

Home solar panels can help some households save money on energy-- but be careful if a solar panel salesperson knocks on your door or calls without warning. There are plenty of reputable companies who can install solar panels or help you make other clean energy improvements to your home.

Overall, Tesla's panels will get the job done, but they're not the best solar panels you can buy. Where Tesla excels is its pricing and product warranty. Tesla solar panels are much cheaper ...

Solar energy is a smart choice for homeowners looking to save money on their energy bills and reduce their carbon footprint. However, the solar industry is not immune to fraud and scams. Unfortunately, in recent years, ...

Be aware of solar energy scams - everything from scammers pretending to be affiliated with the government or utility company to businesses misrepresenting the cost of improvements, savings, and financing options.

To protect yourself from clean energy scams: Know that "free" or "no cost" solar panel offers are scams. The federal government does not install solar systems in homes for free. If you're considering whether solar energy is right for you, ...

It's likely a scam. While there are some government-funded solar programs for households that qualify, "going solar" isn't free. Honest businesses will tell you exactly how much it'll cost to get and install solar ...

Red flags and signs of a solar panel scam. There are several steps in the process of getting solar panels for your home, and there are different red flags you could encounter along the way: Watch out for ads that make wild promises like "free ...

When considering solar panel installation, look out for the following warning signs that may indicate a potential scam: Promises of "free" solar panels or unrealistically low prices; Claims of affiliation with government ...

Red flags and signs of a solar panel scam. There are several steps in the process of getting solar panels for your home, and there are different red flags you could encounter along the way: ...

As solar energy becomes more popular and affordable, homeowners across the country are becoming more interested in harnessing the power of the sun. While the best solar panels can offer significant benefits, ...