

Where can I find rigid foam insulation based on polyurethane chemistry?

Rigid foam insulation based on polyurethane chemistry can be found in the following areas: Appliances such as water heaters, domestic refrigeration products and commercial refrigeration (rigid polyurethane foam).

Is BASF a polyurethane company?

The basic polyurethane chemicals division of BASF in North America is a major supplier of aromatic isocyanates (MDI, TDI) and polyols used by manufacturers of polyurethane products for CASE applications, flexible foam, engineered wood products, rigid polyisocyanurate boards and foam insulation.

What is rigid foam insulation made of?

With outstanding thermal properties, rigid foam insulation made of polymeric MDI (pMDI) brings energy efficiency to buildings and appliances. Polyisocyanurate boards (also known as PIR or polyiso) and rigid polyurethane foam are highly durable and best-in-class options for thermal insulation in the construction industry and in appliances.

Where are polyurethane materials sold?

Our materials are sold through direct sales and through distribution, and are available in bulk shipments (rail cars, tank trucks) as well as totes and drums. Polyurethane raw materials bring performance, durability and comfort to a myriad of industrial and consumer products. Discover here the many applications that rely on MDI, TDI and polyols.

Which polyurethane raw materials are available?

Our product line of polyurethane raw materials consists in Lupranate[®]; aromatic isocyanates (MDI, MDI derivatives and TDI), Pluracol[®]; and Lupraphen[®]; polyols. Our materials are sold through direct sales and through distribution, and are available in bulk shipments (rail cars, tank trucks) as well as totes and drums.

What is Puma polyurethane (Rockwool)?

Italian advanced PUMA polyurethane (rockwool) Fully automatic production lines, and it is equipped with 36-meter double-track unit, 6-component cyclopentane high-pressure online foaming technology. Henan Panels Industry Co., Ltd headquartered in Zhengzhou, China.
