

Who makes Tiamat batteries?

Tiamat designs, develops and manufactures sodium-ion batteries for mobility and stationary energy storage. Stable, simple, safe, fast and performing solution.

Where is Tiamat based?

Founded in 2017 in Amiens(France),Tiamat is based on almost 10 years of academic research carried out by some research units of the CNRS and the university working together within the RS2E,such as the Collège de France in Paris,the LRCS in Amiens,the CIRIMAT in Toulouse,the ICMCB in Bordeaux and the CSIC in Barcelona.

What are the applications of Tiamat technology?

Tiamat technology finds its major applications in mobility (48V MHEV,12V SLI,fast-charge ebus..) and stationary storage (grid frequency regulation),where high power needs are not satisfied by reference technologies.

Why is Tiamat Na ion better than Li-ion based batteries?

In addition to weight reduction due to inferior cell quantity needed,Tiamat Na-ion offers cost pack advantages vs Li-ion based power & fast charge batteries,as its low self-heating allows to avoid pack cooling needs.
