

Capabilities -- Tessolar Inc. "At Tessolar, we design and build molded structural mounting systems for solar arrays that are subject to variable loads from wind or snow. By leveraging Ansys" finite element analysis capabilities, we are able to rapidly and accurately assess design options, allowing us to more cost effectively

Tessolar Inc. is a rapidly growing product design and manufacturing company focused on reducing the cost of photovoltaic energy systems through innovative hardware design. The company has developed a suite of solar module mounting hardware that is significantly simpler than conventional mounting hardware. Tesserack(TM) polymer composite mounting ...

Tessolar Inc. (USA): The newly founded company Tessolar has developed a whole new mounting system concept for PV installations. The Tesserack system replaces metal substructures with lightweight elements made from a plastic material that is also used in space technology. The PV modules can be rapidly clicked into place with no need for tools.

Tessolar Inc is a technology company based in Medford, MA, specializing in innovative solutions for sustainable energy production. With a focus on solar energy systems and advanced engineering, Tessolar Inc aims to provide efficient and environmentally friendly power solutions for residential and commercial applications.

Dr. Goldfine also previously researched reconfigurable liquid-liquid interfaces at Lawrence Berkeley National Laboratory and worked as a development engineer at Tessolar Inc., a startup working on novel solar module design.
